TRUSTEES' MEETING

GARDEN SOCIETY ASKS ASSISTANCE—PENN STREET RESIDENTS REQUEST INFORMATION

The regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the City of Glendale was held in the City Hall, Monday evening, December 20, 1915. Present, O. A. Lane, president of the board, and Trustees Chas. Grist, A. W. Tower and Geo. Williams. Trustee J. S. Thompson was absent. Also present, J. C. Sherer, City Clerk; T. W. Watson, City Manager; W. E. Evans, City Attorney; H. B. Lynch, manager of the public service dept.; Edw. M. Lynch, city engineer, and George Herald, city marhsal.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved.

A communication was read from A. W. Randolph, presenting a statement of injury to a horse "while in the City's employ" and suggesting that the city make him compensation for the same. The matter was referred to the City Manager and the City Attorney.

Messrs Hartmann, Caruthers and Oliver appeared before the Board as a committee from the Glendale Garden Society. Each of these gentlemen addressed the Board, making statements as to the scope of the society's work and requesting financial assistance. Upon motion, the matter was referred to the City Manager and the chairman of the Finance Committee.

The Tax Collector's report was read and ordered to be filed.

Dr. Curtis addressed the board in reference to a delinquent tax sale for the tax of 1914 against a lot owned by his sister in the City of Glendale. Dr. Curtis claimed that the delinquency was caused by the wrong information given him at the tax office when he made inquiry as to taxes against the property, and requested that he be allowed to pay the original assessed amount against the property without any charges for penalties or delinquency.

Upon motion of Trustee Tower, the matter was referred to the City Treasurer and tax collector to report upon, at the next regular meeting.

A communication was read from the Walker Jewelry company in reference to a license of five ($5.00) dollars paid by that concern for conducting an auction for one day and to the further sum of Twenty $20.00) Dollars alleged to have been deposited as security, which the city still holds. The retter requested that the trustees "consider something in reason" as the writer is greatly in need of money. Upon motion of Trustee Williams, Mr. Walker is requested to appear before the board at the next regular meeting, Monday evening.

A number of property owners were present who reside in the neighborhood of the proposed opening of Penn Street, and several of them addressed the board in reference to the matter, wanting particularly to know as to what would be the probable expense of the work. The city engineer made a statement to the effect that while it is impossible at present to give anything but approximate figures, yet in his opinion, based upon comparative costs in the case of other opening and widening proceedings, the expense should not exceed Fifteen ($15.00) Dollars per lot and would probably be less than that figure. Those present interested in the matter finally adjourned to another room to confer among themselves and with the city manager.

The city engineer reported that he is employing a number of Mexican laborers in the temporary protection work along the wash, a class of employees who require their wages daily, and requested a small sum be set aside to be available for this purpose.

Upon motion of Trustee Grist, the city clerk was authorized to issue a demand and warrant on general fund for the sum of Fifty ($50.00) Dollars, payable to the city treasurer, for the benefit of the city manager's petty cash account for the payment of these workmen.

The manager of the public service department reported in regard to the bid received and read at the last meeting for the sinking of a well and pit, recommending that the bid on the well be accepted, and that of the pit be held in abeyance. On motion of Trustee Tower, the recommendation was adopted, by the following vote: Ayes—Lane, Tower, Williams; Noes—Grist; Absent—Thompson.

The manager of the public service department mentioned the matter of granting an easement across a small corner of the city's pumping plant lot for road purposes. The matter was discussed at some length and action

CONCERT FOR Y. P. B

Quite a gratifying audience greeted the clever entertainers who, under the leadership of Mrs. Coral Harrison Sloan, gave a benefit concert for the Young People's Branch of the W. C. T. U., at the Presbyterian church, Monday night. From beginning to end the entertainment was marked by that perfection of training which is characteristic of Mrs. Sloan's students and all those associated with her. From the opening duet by Miss Lillian Mason and Mrs. Sloan, which was the ever-pleasing Overture to "Il Trovatore," through every number, daininess, sweetness and artistic value were manifest. Miss Doris Packer exhibited great native wit and cleverness in her monologue, "The Village Seamstress." Miss Virginia Thom, a sweet little girl, captivated the hearts of all by her playing of "The Goblin," which demands considerable technique.

In her rendering of the solo, "The Token," Miss Dorothy Bonnell, with her sweet personality, took the audience by storm. Miss Margaret Lou Ledbetter, in a monologue, "A Bad Little Boy," arranged by Mrs. Sloan, exhibited remarkable talent. It was quite evident in this as in all the items on the program that Mrs. Sloan's method succeeds in developing native qualities and originality rather than the usual stereotyped and mechanical qualities. Miss Dorothy Brown did justice to herself and her teacher in the new piano solo, Fredericks "Barcarolle."

Mrs. C. M. Van Dyke, who assisted Mrs. Sloan and her students, gave a remarkably fine exhibition of her wonderful vocal gift in a duet entitled "The Star and the Song," which she sang with Miss Dorothy Bonnell. Miss Shirley Chase and Miss Dorothy Hinckley, gave a most dramatic and clever interpretation of a scene from Julius Caesar. Chaminade's clever piano piece, "The Flatterer," was played by Miss Lillian Mason with a crispness and fluent certitude that brought out the rippling beauties of that remarkable composition to perfection.

The entertainment closed with a reading by Mrs. Sloan, "The Angel and the Shepherds," by Wallace. This was appropriate to the Christmas season and was given with a deep insight into the spirit of the composition and of the Christmas atmosphere. The financial response of the audience was most gratifying. There was no charge for admission. In every way this was a most successful entertainment and reflected the highest credit on Mrs. Sloan and her assistants, who gave their services free to the society.

VIRGINIAN AFTERNOON

One of the most delightful social affairs of the week will be the Christmas party of the Political Section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club, to be held at the home of the curator, Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, Thursday, December 23rd, at 2:30 p. m.

The party will be in the nature of a Virginian Afternoon, the refreshments being in keeping with that idea.

To demonstrate the work of the section, Mrs. A. L. Weaver will read a paper by one of the members on "The Development of Local Self Government in Virginia." The treat of the afternoon will be the humorous monologue by Mrs. M. E. Johnson, talented member of the Wednesday Morning Club, entitled "The Tenderfoot in Politics," and "The Late Lamented Rooster Ordinance."

A collection of interesting curios of the Colonial period loaned by Mr. R. M. Jackson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and uncle of Mrs. Mattison B. Jones will be on display. Among them are a bail bond of Jefferson Davis, filed at Richmond, Va., a number of original documents, a bill of sale of two negro slave girls, a document in the Court of Indenture for apprenticeship in the hatter's trade; bill of sale of household goods, the first marriage license granted in Laurel County, Kentucky, 1826, a marriage bond and considerable money and old bank notes.

Mrs. Jones cordially invites the members of the Tuesday Afternoon Club to be present and requests that those desiring to attend phone their names by Wednesday, either to herself, Mrs. A. L. Weaver, or Mrs. Oliver O. Clark.

The ladies are at liberty to bring their Christmas work.

This is to be a giving Christmas. Everybody is busy at it.

SHOOTING IN CITY

CHIEF OF POLICE WARNS BOYS THAT AIR GUNS ARE FIREARMS IN LAW

"Though I have heard constant grumblings regarding the use of firearms within the city limits," said Chief of Police Herald, today, "I have had no complaints actually lodged until today, when E. M. McClure, 428 S. Maryland, lodged a complaint to the effect that certain boys were violating the ordinance by using firearms in his neighborhood. This gave definite point to the outcry against the practice which has been annoying so many citizens.

"The city ordinance distinctly makes it a misdemeanor to discharge firearms inside the city limits and specially includes airguns in the scope of the ordinance. Everyone is aware that this ordinance has been violated frequently; but it is difficult to take the violators in the act, and it is not possible with a small police force that has many other duties to discharge to make a special watch over this offense.

"Hitherto it has been taken for granted that if there is no complaint there is no offense. The moment a complaint is made any case will be investigated and promptly followed up.

"Today we had complaints against a group of boys, Floyd Van Ness of Louise St., George Mills of the same street, Sidney Gorman, also of Louise St., and Robert Garrett of 1007 Fifth St. Some of these boys were undoubtedly shooting with airguns in the vicinity of Mr. McClure's residence. There can be no doubt of the danger of the practice. There have been numerous instances of fatalities occurring through this same indifferent and careless handling of the airgun. Although it is a seemingly harmless weapon it is capable of taking life. The "BB" bullet can penetrate bones of a thin skull and cause death. They can penetrate the eye and also cause death. They have been lodged in the ear with fatal effect.

"Anyway the ordinance is clear on the point and I wish all boys in the city to know that airguns are firearms within the scope and meaning of the law. There is a natural desire on the part of the healthy American boy to learn to shoot. The traditions of the country are in favor of his learning to shoot. However, the country now is so thickly populated that there is a vast difference between old colonial days and 1915. California has nearly as much of a population now as had the thirteen original States. There is no room in the cities for indiscriminate rifle practice within the city limits.

"These boys I have carefully warned and dismissed. Robert Garrett, had an airgun, which he had not used for a year at least, and the other boys borrowed it from him. I read the section of the ordinance over to Robert and let them all go; with an explanation that the next time they shou'd be arrested on a similar charge they would go before Judge Whomes.

"Since these boys have been dealt with it may be well for the public to know that there is information concerning others in the vicinity of the High school and still others in the vicinity of the Verdugo Road, who have been using not merely airguns, but .22 rifles and rifles of even greater caliber. To all of them I wish to issue a warning."

AUTO ACCIDENT

While driving their own car on San Fernando Road toward Los Angeles on Monday, December 20, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Graham, of 1437 Hawthorne street, were run into by another machine. The Graham car was pretty badly damaged and Mrs. Graham is suffering from a sprained back and the nervous shock, her injuries not being considered serious, however. Mr. Graham was unhurt.

WEATHER FORECAST—Fair tonight and Wednesday; northeast winds.

GERANIUMS IN DEMAND

TWO THOUSAND PLANTS NEEDED BY GARDEN SOCIETY FOR WINDOW BOXES IN CITY

The Flower Show Committee of Fifteen will meet this, Tuesday, evening at Headquarters, 1111 W. Broadway, at 7:30 p. m., when many important matters will be arranged. Mrs. Nanno Woods, president of the Glendale Garden Society, would be glad if members and friends would immediately make cuttings of ivy geranium; there will be great demand for plants for window boxes in the near future, and if a hundred Glendale residents would at once put in 20 cuttings, or more, within two months Glendale could supply 2000 plants of ivy geranium for the glorification of the city. Thus at no expense whatsoever, and with minimum trouble, 500 window boxes could be fi''ed, and Glendale would be advertised throughout the length and breadth of the United States.

We have friends living in beautiful homes in this city who have either not yet heard of the Garden Society, or who have not yet realised what a tremendous factor in the community the society is proving itself to be. These good friends of ours could afford to set out hundreds of ivy geranium cuttings, hundreds of sprengeri and other green trailing plants, such as the vincus major (used in the Hamburger window boxes). There are beautiful gardens in the foothills, owned by people of leisure, people of broad sympathies and generous hearts. When these owners come to understand what a Free Flower Show will mean to Glendale, what the campaign of Flowers for the City will mean, when they understand what a glory will be added to Glendale by the cultivation and distribution of ivy geraniums for the hundreds of window boxes now in contemplation, then our Society will be deluged with offers from these prosperous friends, offers of prizes for the Flower Show, of plants for our window boxes, of bonuses for the children who are now growing flowers and vegetables for exhibiting in April, offers of aid in every department.

Parents who are wondering what to buy in order to fill the Christmas stockings might purchase a few packets of seed for distribution. Five cents worth of carrot, parsley, and radishes, will give the children plenty of employment during the holiday week, and will keep them out of doors in the health-giving sunshine. Sweet peas too, might be planted, and petunias grow as easily as weeds and are beautiful for eight months of the year.

If any group of boys would like to grow carrots for marketing, if they can get portion of a vacant lot, or their own back yard, Mrs. Nanno Woods will lend them a hand plow and show them how to plant the seed. Carrots grow easily, with four sowings they can be had all the year round; they make good food for family use, as well as for rabbits, and they are always in demand. So come along, boys, and let us sow carrots during the Christmas holidays.

DEATH OF SAMUEL EVANS

Friends and acquaintances of Samuel Evans, Lincoln, Ill., will be sorry to hear of his death which occurred quite suddenly Monday at his home in Lincoln. The news was telegraphed to Mrs. W. A. Hough of 216 W. 10th. Mr. Evans had a wide acquaintance throughout Glendale and Tropico, having been in the habit of spending his winters here. He was a man of considerable wealth. He owned a large ranch near Lincoln, and was esteemed one of the best stockmen in that part of the country. For some years he had retired from active business. He was the grandfather of Mrs. Glenn Craig of Saugus and of Miss Mary Jane Evans, 216 W. 10th St.

SINGULAR APPLE TREE

Mr. E. W. Lyon, 232 S. Louise, has a curious apple tree in his yard. This is a White Pearmain. The tree was planted five years ago by Mr. Bert Anderson, the contractor who sold the property on Louise street to Mr. Lyon. There are two kinds of Pearmains—a winter and a summer. This is a summer Pearmain and has already brought forth fruit in proper season. By some curious freak it again put forth blossoms and now is bearing fruit in the winter season. There are fifteen apples in all on the tree. Another singularity about this fruit is that it is cylindrical in shape. Mr. Lyon brought one of the fruit-bearing branches to the Glendale News office and it is now an exhibition in the window.

FURTHER COURSE OF THE WAR

It will be remembered that Kitchener, the British minister of war predicted in the beginning of the present outbreak in Europe that the war would last for three years. It looks as though his prediction were on the point of being verified. It is certain that it might have been appreciably shortened had the British and French anticipated the course of events in the Balkans and sent an adequate force to the aid of Servia six months ago. That was not done and the consequence has been that the Central Powers have taken on a new lease of life by reason of having gained the positive and active aid of Bulgaria, the negative assistance of Greece's neutrality and the doubtful neutrality of Roumania.

What will be the further course of the war depends a great deal on the resources of the countries on both sides. It is believed that Germany and Austria have come to the point where their forces will diminish from day to day without possibility of being recruited. At the same time their financial resources must also be seriously strained. They are not in a position to stand the strain as long as the Allies and it looks as though the victory will come to the longest purse. It is not enough to have men in the field. Those men must be added to daily to make up for the attrition of battle, capture and disease. Furthermore, they must be fed even at the expense of the civilian population at home. When the pressure of economic strain comes on the home population another force is brought into play toward ending the war. The question is which of the enemies will first have to yield to this strain.

It is stated that the kaiser has extensive visions of driving an army through Egypt to India and endeavoring to conquer the East, at the same time striving to unite under the dominion of Germany the whole of Central Europe. A similar dream, in the case of Napoleon, was responsible for his downfall.

It is singular how in the providence of God a very insignificant force is able to work out vast designs and change the course of nations. Napoleon was on his way to Constantinople and world empire. He was even contemplating turning Mohammedan if necessary when he stopped to reduce the insignificant town of Acre, commanded by Sidney, a British officer, with a handful of British seamen and a few hundred Turkish troops.

Napoleon thought it would be a mere matter of a few days to reduce the little garrison; yet Sidney and his men withstood seven assaults in force, and in the end when a large body of valiant Frenchmen had penetrated through the breach they were so withstood in the narrow streets that they were compelled to shut themselves up in one of the buildings, where, after having lost half of their number, they were compelled to surrender. That ended the siege and Napoleon found that his delay before Acre had brought about events in France that demanded his return. His fleets, with provisions and arms had been captured by Sidney by means of a couple of old vessels that he had fitted up. The cannon needed for the siege were fitted up on the walls of Acre and the provisions intended for the French were used by the besieged to their great advantage.

That insignificant garrison of Acre altered the whole of Napoleon's career and afterward as he would pace up and down his room on St. Helena he would point to a picture of Sidney which he kept in his quarters and say: There is the man who ruined my career."

If it is true that the kaiser contemplates the conquest of the East and the setting up of a German hegemony at Constantinople, he is merely indulging in one of those fatal dreams that have misled would-be conquerors in all ages of the world. Above man and man's plottings and dreams of world power is God who guides the destinies of all nations to raise up or to cast down. None can stay his hand or say unto him, "What doest thou?" When man or monarch thinks to usurp the prerogative of God his doom is at hand. Like Nebuchadnezzar of old in the very moment when he is proudly saying, "Is not this great Babylon which I have built," he may be driven off his throne, buffeted by rude hands, and sent to graze with the beasts of the field; or like Belshazzar, he may ese a hand writing beasts of the field; or like Belshazzar, he may see a hand writing and that night he may be slain and his kingdom divided.

CALIFORNIA A TUBERCULOSIS DUMPING GROUND

One of the most significant facts regarding tuberculosis in California is to be found in the statistics of the disease which show that no fewer than 129 persons who had lived in Los Angeles less than six months, in 1914, died of tuberculosis. Twenty of that number had lived there less than one month. In fact, these twenty were dying rapidly of the disease when they reached California.

Most of these unfortunates were from other states. Some of them were financially able to take care of themselves and some were not. The city had to pay for the indigents and thus a burden was laid on the taxpayers which they should not have been called upon to assume.

It is actually true, as has been said by medical men repeatedly, that California is a magnet to the tuberculous. This land of sunshine should, of course, be available to all for the cure of their toubles, but while California may be willing to share her sunshine, why should she be called on to foot the bill for those who use it?

Of course California is not the only state where such conditions may be found. Now it is proposed by the Federal government that a subsidy be provided for the care of such non-resident indigents. This will interest all the Western states which have been for years the dumping ground for the tuberculous.

During the past five years there have been 25,836 deaths from tuberculosis in California. This gives a rate of 200.5 deaths per 100,000. That is nearly 5000 deaths from tuberculosis annually. The medical problem seems to be to reduce this death rate. Medical men of standing say it can be done despite the numbers of people who come hither each year to die.

When the problem is looked at seriously it is found to be one of some magnitude. As one authority puts it: "Think of the alarm that would be caused throughout the State of California if the entire population of Watsonville, South Pasadena, Petaluma, Salinas or Palo Alto were to die of tuberculosis! Imagine what would happen if during five years everyone in Stockton or Long Beach or Fresno, were to die of tuberculosis!" Yet that is exactly what happens every year in California, a number of the population equal to the total inhabitants of any one of those towns perishes annually from tuberculosis.

It is really amazing to think of the indifference that people display toward this disease. If threatened with an outbreak of bubonic plague, from a single isolated case, whole communities go into panic at times; yet bubonic plague is so thoroughly understood and the provisions for quarantining it so strict and complete that it is possible to stamp it out if it shows itself or to prevent it from spreading if a single case should be found.

There is, however, no such wholesome dread of tuberculosis. People suffering from the disease are permitted to dwell in their homes and to become thus a center of infection or contagion. One poor leper will throw a whole city into panic, but dozens of preventable deaths annually from tuberculosis do not create even a ripple of excitement. There is not a city in California that has not its list of large losses from this disease; yet the public goes on living side by side with disease-smitten patients apparently unaware of, or indifferent to the menace they cherish in their midst.

FEMALE INVASION OF LABOR FIELD

What has become a necessity in foreign countries by reason of the war is apparently, through some economic change, becoming a fact in the United States—the employment of women in trades and businesses not hitherto invaded by them. Like all economic problems it is a condition, not a theory, with which the country has to deal. If women are to continue to invade the area of labor, changes in the economic life of the nation are just as certain to be involved.

If it were possible for one sex to do without the other then it would be likely that one or the other of the sexes would exterminate the weaker; but the race is dependent on the true relationship of man and woman, and anything that will upset that relation cannot be for the good of the race and will ultimately come to a natural end.

In the foreign countries the utilization of women in various fields of labor which they had not hitherto dreamed of invading has been brought about by the exigencies of the war, and while the changes that this great conflict have rendered necessary in the employment of labor may not wholly remain, they cannot fail to leave an indelible mark on the whole situation. Never again will it be possible wholly to exclude women from the various fields of labor. They have shown themselves not merely patriotic; but also capable workers in any and every field.

In the United States, singular to state, similar conditions are being brought about for different reasons, and in a different manner. While the war in Europe has necessitated the use of women as machinists and mechanics, women machinists and mechanics have been developing in all the industrial centers of the United States. The American woman's invasion of the mechanical trades now rivals that of the women in England, France, Germany and Russia. Thousands of women have been employed for years past on the lighter tasks of mechanical work. Now, however, skilled women mechanics are manipulating giant steel lathes, punches, drills, trimming presses and other heavy machinery. In fact the change is so great as to amount to an industrial revolution.

In Cleveland, Ohio, there was recently a labor shortage of 3000 mechanics. Immigration has fallen off to such an extent owing to the war that it was found impossible to supply, as usual, the shortage from abroad. The mills had to fall back on women and the employers were astonished to find that the women had a natural aptitude for operating big machines. The companies there now employ 150 women for operating drilling machines, punches, and trimming presses.

Comparing conditions surrounding the women employes of the heavy machines with those surrounding 100 stenographers, it was found that the trade operators got a greater financial return for their work. Women machinists are not asked to dress in the height of fashion; nobody cares how they dress. When not working they dress well, however, and their standard of living is not low. Many of them have substantial bank accounts.

All this indicates a change that might yet result in something like the conditions portrayed in Lytton's "The Coming Race," in which women were depicted as having gradually taken over the nature and the occupations of man. Changes come slowly, but like the shining light they shine more and more until the perfect day arrives. It may not be long before many of the present relationships of the sexes may be reversed.

Simplicity marked the wedding of Miss Pearl E. Jones and Mr. Amiel B. Francis, the ceremony taking place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Jones of 115 West 10th street, Tropico, at one o'clock, Monday, December 20. Mr. O. E. Jones, pastor of the Seventh Day Adventist church, and father of the bride, officiated.

Pink and white carnations intermingled with fern fronds and ropes of smilax formed the dainty and artistic decoration throughout the room in which the troth was plighted.

The bride, who was unattended, made a charming picture in her costume of beaver brown with hat and accessories to match. Immediately following the service the young couple departed for San Diego, where the honeymoon will be spent. Upon their return a reception will be held and after the holidays Mr. Francis will take his bride to Wells, Minnesota, where a pretty home awaits her.

Mrs. Francis, nee Jones, had very recently arrived here from Lincoln, Nebraska, and ere her departure from the foreign city was shown much social attention and many showers were given in her honor.

The many friends and relatives have remembered the young couple with many beautiful wedding gifts.

Miss Esther Francis, of St. Helena, Cal., came south for her brother's wedding and will remain over the holidays.

CHRISTMAS MAIL

It is reported by officials at the Los Angeles postoffice that the incoming Christmas mail is greater in proportion to that of last year while the outgoing mail is considerably less in proportion to the increase in population. Evidently the people have been feeling the pinch of hard times.

Two chaps who wrote black hand letters have just been sent to stay five years in an institution where all correspondence is rigidly supervised.

Against the contention that a Gila monster's bite is not poisonous was cited the instance of a man who had died of it, and it seemed to convince the jury.

WHITE CHRISTMAS SERVICE

Seldom has a larger or more appreciative audience gathered at the First Congregational church, than the one which assembled Sunday evening to attend the Christmas service and program.

The church rooms were used in their entirety and then standing room was found to be at a premium.

The decorations were beautifully artistic, the entire end wall back of the pulpit and raised platform, including the floor section being covered in white, relieved by long ropes of smilax hung across the walls and platform front in garlands of emerald green. Silver stars were suspended from the trusses, also white ribbon, these being allowed to fall in festoons and caught at the side walls. Toward the rear of the platform stood a white cross above which hung a lighted star. Two small Christmas trees dressed in white and electrically lighted with frosted bulbs stood at either end of the platform.

Each number on the program was given with credit by the individual, and the most appealing number was given by seventeen girls taking part in "Gifts for the King." Clad in white and wearing crowns of gilt, they carried arm shields bearing the name of each part, done in gold lettering.

The Christmas story following "The Bible Narrative," was effectively told by Doris Packard. The poem "Others," was splendidly given by four girls and proved most appropriate to the spirit of the evening's program.

A most impressive feature was the singing in the distance of "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," by Mr. B'ake Franklin; Mr. W. J. Button reading the scripture lesson about the shepherds.

Two beautiful and fitting stories were told by Miss Clara Nash, a story teller of the Los Angeles Public Library.

Many gifts of toys, infants' garments, provisions and currency and wrapped in white were laid at the foot of the cross and many pledges of self and service were made.

Next Sunday evening the cantata, "The Light Eternal" will be given by the choir, assisted by several other musicians. This promises to be one of the most beautiful musical programs given by the choir of the First Congregational church.

MEETING OF RED CROSS

Considerable success is attending the efforts of the local British Red Cross society, which was organized a short time ago. At the meeting held in the home of Mrs. Whitaker, 208 W. Ninth St. Monday afternoon, there was a good attendance and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. A number of Kitchener calendars were sold and the ladies spent the better part of the time in knitting and sewing articles for the use of the wounded.

One of the members made a donation of money which has greatly aided the work. Members of the society and friends who may be interested in the Red Cross work are advised that any article which they may donate to the society will be promptly sent to the trenches. Arrangements for that purpose are very complete and but little delay is experienced in getting the Red Cross gifts to the hospitals.

Through the Los Angeles British Red Cross, of which the local society is a branch, $2250 has already been sent to aid the work. In addition to this a large quantity of clothing and hospital supplies has been sent.

Mrs. Nanno Woods has very kindly offered her office for the use of the society and its friends as a headquarters in Glendale. Gifts for the aid of the wounded and any donations can be conveniently left there. The address of Mrs. Woods's office is 1111 W. Broadway. The next meeting of the society will be held Jan. 3, at the home of Mrs. George Eley, 1210 Lomita avenue.

HOLLY AND MISTLETOE

The holly was formerly considered a "wild crop" like huckleberries, growing in the woods in the southern part of the United States. Then the railroads extending from New York and Philadelphia into Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina opened up territory of wide extent, wonderfully rich in holly. The holly thickets of these states have for many years furnished hundreds of thousands of wreaths annually. Some years the holly berries are scarcer than in other years but there is never a complete failure of the berries, says the Michigan Farmer.

The season for harvesting opens Thanksgiving week. The first shipments are made to distant markets. There is much waste in cutting the holly branches. Most of the holly is gathered by boys, who have no thought of the trees' future. Climbing to the top, the boy, with hatchet in hand begins to cut from the tree every branch that has choice berries. The holly is of extremely slow growth, yet in many instances it is either cut down or so completely stripped of its branches that it soon perishes. A tree judiciously cut will within six or seven years grow out again and trimming in the right way will improve the berries.

After the branches laden with the scarlet berries have been cut from the trees, the new twigs bearing the red fruit are broken off and carried to the homes of the gatherers. In every home there is a busy scene, especially at night, when all hands find something to do. Children bunch the berries, tying two or three clusters together with fine wire; others cut off the leaves with scissors, while older workers wind the wreaths on frames of sweet pepper bush, azalea or other flexible young twigs, which look like a bunch of switches before they are deftly twisted into circles. An expert worker will complete a hundred or more wreaths a day. Dealers pay from 5 to 15 cents each for the wreaths, according to size and the number of clusters of berries they contain.

Holly is hardy and may be grown in many places for ornamental purposes. It may be propagated by planting the berries, which contain the seeds, or by transplanting young seedlings, which is considered the better and surer way.

Mistletoe is less in demand than holly, yet large quantities of it find their way from the southern forests to the markets. The mistletoe is an evergreen plant with white berries which ripen in late autumn. The one-seeded berries are glutinous and readily adhere to any surface, like a bit of wax. Fruit-eating birds are especially fond of these berries, and they are carried long distances by the birds. The seeds use up what food supply they have in getting the feeding threads into crevices in the bark of trees to which they adhere, and thus get into contact with the sap that flows between the tree's bark and its wood. Thereafter the mistletoe plant draws upon the tree for sustenance. The first branchlet from a seed always turns toward the tree to which the seed is clinging and soon the tiny plant is firmly attached. In this way the trees in the southern forests are sown each year with mistletoe. The black poplar, the chestnut and the oak are favorite hosts of the mistletoe.

THESE RULES SAVE LIFE

For pedestrians.—

1. "Don't let your familiarity with traffic breed contempt for its dangers.
2. "Don't forget that if you are carrying a large bundle or an open umbrella part of your view may be cut off.
3. "Don't vacillate on the approach of a vehicle. The driver will be better able to avoid striking you if you act normally.
4. "Don't forget that the proper place to cross the street is at the cross-walk.
5. "Don't day-dream when crossing the street; you are likely to wake up in the hospital.
6. "Don't jump on or off a moving car.
7. "Don't try to anticipate where a driver is going to stop or start. Give him space to pass you."

For chauffeurs.—

8. "Don't imagine you are a careful driver because you shout or toot your horn at a pedestrian.
9. "Don't lose sight of the fact that the pedestrian is also permitted to use the roadway.
10. "Don't forget that children must play and that the streets are sometimes the only place where they can play.
11. "Don't forget that the operator of a motor vehicle has the same responsibility as the engineer of a train.
12. "Don't fail to anticipate that persons will cross at the crossings and that you must slow down.
13. "Don't imagine that traffic regulations were made for everybody but yourself.
14. "Don't race home after your day's work. This practice caused most of the wagon accidents last year.
15. "Don't fail to examine your brakes occasionally.
16. "Don't forget that you cannot stop quickly on a down grade or on a slippery pavement.
17. "Don't, if you are in a hurry, try to make up time across the street crossings.

FRENCH CHRISTMAS DOLLS

LIMOGES, France, Dec. 24.—No little girl in France will get a German doll from Santa Claus tomorrow morning. The bearded old boy has supplied nearly all the little girls in the world with German dolls for years, but everyone he takes out of his sleigh tomorrow morning in France, will be French and no mistake, France told Santa Claus that this had to be so, and Santa is carrying thousands of those French dolls to little girls all over the world. Until now Germany has supplied the world with dolls.

From the German towns of Leipsig, Nuremburg and Lauscha, they have gone out each year behind the reindeer to gladden Christmas morning for little girls. France, like every other country, got its dolls from Germany, but now, France wants to make dolls for all the little girls in the world. France is convinced she can make lots nicer dolls than any other country and she thinks every little girl in the world is entitled to just the nicest kind of a doll it is possible to make.

The new French dolls, in addition to their dainty heads, are to have the glossiest of hair, the softest of cheeks, the most wonderful of eyes and the most sparkling of teeth. They are nearly all to come from Limoges, France. Limoges is trying to become the doll center of the world instead of Leipsig, Nuremberg and Lauscha.

Limoges is the center of one of the largest and finest porcelain and pottery industries in the world. To show that she is really in earnest, Limoges has already begun designing the new dolls. She has ordered several of the world's most famous sculptors at Paris to design them. Just now Limoges is trying to solve the problem of not only making the most beautiful doll in the world, but also of making it cheap enough so every little girl in the world can afford to have one. She admits that this is difficult, for the Germans can make very cheap dolls.

DODGE BROTHERS
MOTOR CAR

The motor seems like a thing of life, abounding in vitality—trigger swift in the gliding get-away, and splendidly free from the slightest jerk, or jump, or jolt

A reflection of this is the steadiness of the car—that freedom from trembling and vibration in the tonneau which means so much in ease and comfort

The motor is 30-35 horsepower
